

Charitable door-to-door collection bags: CAP Compliance team guidance for commercial participants

March 2017

1. Establishing a precedent

In 2016 the ASA received a complaint about a charitable collection bag issued by a commercial participant. The complainant challenged whether the bag made sufficiently clear the commercial nature of the business, given the prominence of the charity's name on the bag.

The ASA formally investigated the issue and concluded the bag broke CAP Code rules because it was likely to give consumers the misleading impression that they were donating direct to the charity.

You can read the ruling here.

Because there was no mention of the advertiser's name or company status on the front of the bag and the charity name and registration number were given more prominence than the details of the commercial company undertaking the collection, the ASA concluded the bag was misleading.

In light of this ruling, CAP is working with organisations involved in the production and licensing of charitable bags to communicate these requirements to all affected collectors within the market.

2. Advice

The ruling indicates that advertisers should communicate their name and company status on both sides of the bag. In addition to this, if the bag features a charity's name, it must not be given greater prominence than the name of the company undertaking the collection. In practice, this means that the company name must be of equal or greater prominence compared to the charity name.

To clarify, the ASA ruling applies to private companies or individuals who act as commercial participants in the house-to-house collection of goods, with a proportion of the proceeds given to charity. It does not apply to charity shops (or their agents) collecting goods on behalf of the charity to be sold in charity shops. In this case, the charity would hold the collection licence and could be the sole name on the bag.
